

GETTING STARTED

WORKOUT DAYS

Each phase of the program has workout days. Repeat the workout days without skipping a day. For example, in phase 1, after day 4, your next workout would be day 1 again. Do not skip around workout days. Rest days are up to you. I recommend working out 5 days a week and resting 2 days if you want a quick jump-start into the program. Minimum workout days would be 4 days per week.

EXAMPLE OF A SCHEDULE FOR PHASE 1

	MON	TUE	WED	THR	FRI	SAT	SUN
Week 1	Day 1 Workout	Day 2 Workout	Day 3 Workout	Day 4 Workout	Day 1 Workout	Rest	Rest
Week 2	Day 2 Workout	Day 3 Workout	Day 4 Workout	Day 1 Workout	Day 2 Workout	Rest	Rest
Week 3	Day 3 Workout	Day 4 Workout	Day 1 Workout	Day 2 Workout	Day 3 Workout	Rest	Rest
Week 4	Day 4 Workout	Day 1 Workout	Day 2 Workout	Day 3 Workout	Day 4 Workout	Rest	Rest

TIP: All you have to remember is what day you worked on last, this way it is easier to keep up with the routine instead of trying to match the workout days specifically with the days of the week.

REST DAYS FOR ALL 4 WORKOUT PHASES

Take rest days according to how you feel. Minimum of 1 rest day a week is a must. Most will find the need to take more rest days during the first 2 weeks of training. Afterwards, your muscles will start to adapt to the workouts and will respond with less soreness. Getting 6-8 hours of sleep per night is a must for proper muscle recovery. You can still work your muscle if you feel a little soreness just as long as it doesn't feel painful.

GETTING STARTED (CONT'D)

REST TIMES BETWEEN SETS

Every phase has specific rest times. I encourage you to use a stopwatch to track the amount of rest between every set. This will ensure your heart rate stays elevated and that you have high intensity workouts every time to burn more body fat. To increase the intensity of your workouts, you can shorten the rest time between your sets OR increase your weight to further challenge yourself.

SUPERSETS

Supersets are 2 exercises performed back to back with no rest in between. They can be on opposing muscles. For example: back & chest; biceps & triceps; quads & hamstrings. Supersets can also be done doing 2 exercises back to back on the same muscle group. For example: Bench Press & Dumbbell Flys; Barbell Curls & Dumbbell Hammer Curls.

TRISETS

Same as a superset, except it's 3 exercises in a row nonstop instead of 2.

AMOUNT OF WEIGHT TO USE

Pick a weight that you can perform the repetition needed for that exercise. If you started the program, its always safer to start off a little lighter and pyramid your way up as the sets progress. Make sure when you establish a weight used for an exercise, make sure it is heavy enough where you have difficulty finishing the last rep of the set.

TILL FAILURE

This means do the maximum number of repetitions of an exercise until your muscles fail, or can't do anymore.

EXERCISE SUBSTITUTIONS

See Exercise Substitution worksheet.

- WEIGHT: Use the WEIGHT column to write the weight you lift. It should be heavier than the previous phases since the reps are much lower.

TIP: Must keep very strict form in this phase due to the decrease in reps on your exercises and increase in weight used. Make sure you increase weight gradually, pyramiding up from the 1st set of the exercise to prevent injury. If you're unsure if the weight is too heavy, have a spotter spot you until you are confident on the amount of weight you can handle for the amount of reps you need.

- WEIGHT: If you're satisfied with your body at the end of the 12 weeks, keep using the same amount of weight to maintain. If you want to become more lean and ripped, continue to add weight to your exercises.

TIP: As you increase the weight you lift, DO NOT INCREASE THE AMOUNT OF CALORIES YOU EAT ON A DAILY BASIS so your body can continue to burn more body fat. If you do increase your calories as you get stronger, you will add more muscle mass, but your fat burning will stop.
